Recommended entry to the unit

Access to this unit is at the discretion of the centre. However, it is recommended that learners have achieved a relevant qualification at SCQF level 7 and/or have suitable industrial experience before undertaking this unit.

Core Skills

Achievement of this unit gives automatic certification of the following:

Context for delivery

If this unit is delivered as part of a group award, it is recommended that it should be taught and assessed within the subject area of the group award to which it contributes.

The Assessment Support Pack (ASP) for this unit provides assessment and marking guidelines that exemplify the national standard for achievement. It is a valid, reliable and practicable assessment. Centres wishing to develop their own assessments should refer to the ASP to ensure a comparable standard. A list of existing ASPs is available to download from SQA's website (<http://www.sqa.org.uk/sqa/46233.2769.html>).

Equality and inclusion

This unit specification has been designed to ensure that there are no unnecessary barriers to learning or assessment. The individual needs of learners should be taken into account when planning learning experiences, selecting assessment methods, or considering alternative evidence.

Further advice can be found on our website www.sqa.org.uk/assessmentarrangements.

Support notes

Unit title: Managing Hospitality Organisations (SCQF level 8)

Unit support notes are offered as guidance and are not mandatory.

While the exact time allocated to this unit is at the discretion of the centre, the notional design length is 40 hours.

Guidance on the content and context for this unit

The unit aims to focus on the practical application of theory to describe and explain different management approaches used within a range of hospitality organisations.

Outcome 1

This outcome sets the scene by providing the learner with an overview of the basic nature and functioning of work organisations in general. Topics should include:

- ◆ formal and informal structures
- ◆ the values, ethics and responsibilities of organisations
- ◆ the external factors that impact on organisation including legislative compliance

The outcome also looks at the distinction between leadership and management, the various components of management and the importance of leadership as part of the management process. Learners should research and discuss current commercial organisations and management styles.

The key roles of an effective manager and the importance of leadership should be discussed. At least two leadership approaches and two management styles should be explored. Learners could apply their knowledge and understanding by suggesting the most suitable style or approach for a given situation relating to an organisation in the hospitality industry.

Outcome 2

Theories of motivation and their relevance within the hospitality industry could be explored. Discussions could focus on ways in which hospitality industry managers can motivate staff to work towards organisational goals.

Learners should investigate at least two different theories of motivation in order to be able to make recommendations for the motivation of employees in a given situation relating to the hospitality industry. The importance of team work within hospitality and the development of a cohesive team should be discussed. The management tools that support workplace performance should be covered, for example:

- ◆ training
- ◆ performance reviews
- ◆ grievance and disciplinary procedures

Outcome 3

Lecturers should raise awareness that change itself can be viewed with great suspicion and distrust — whether or not the change will actually be beneficial to the employee and customers. Reasons for the resistance to change should be explored and the necessity for a considered, managed, communicative approach to change should be stressed.

The fact that change is unavoidable and becoming more rapid as our society develops should be presented. It would probably be helpful for learners' later experiences if the positive and opportunistic aspects of change underpin their exposure to the concept of change in hospitality organisations.

At least four of the main factors that contribute to the unsuccessful management of change should be identified.

Learners could apply their knowledge and understanding by developing strategies to lead individuals and teams through the process of change, identify the consequences of change on an organisation and the impact on the key stakeholders.

Guidance on approaches to the delivery of this unit

The unit should incorporate a variety of approaches to teaching and learning and may include:

- ◆ Lectures
- ◆ Industry visits
- ◆ Guest speakers
- ◆ Videos
- ◆ A variety of resource materials
- ◆ Group work

Teaching staff delivering this unit must have a good understanding of managerial skills relating to organisational structures and line management responsibility. Knowledge of human resource management would also be beneficial in the delivery of this unit.

It is recommended that learners have the opportunity to visit a hospitality organisation to give them an insight into how the structure and line management responsibilities are implemented within hospitality organisations. This unit could also be linked with the SQA Advanced Qualifications unit Work Placement at SCQF level 7.

Guidance on approaches to assessment of this unit

Evidence can be generated using different types of assessment. The following are suggestions only. There may be other methods that would be more suitable to learners.

Questions based on case studies relating to a hospitality organisation could be used to assess this unit. Due to the integrative nature of the outcomes in this unit, it may be possible for one comprehensive case study to be produced that would allow learners to demonstrate their competence for the whole unit. If a single case study is used, it is not essential for all the questions relating to the different outcomes to be assessed at the same time. Evidence should be generated under controlled conditions.

SQA Advanced Unit Specification

Centres are reminded that prior verification of centre-devised assessments would help to ensure that the national standard is being met. Where learners experience a range of assessment methods, this helps them to develop different skills that should be transferable to work or further and higher education.

Opportunities for e-assessment

E-assessment may be appropriate for some assessments in this unit. By e-assessment, we mean assessment which is supported by Information and Communication Technology, such as e-testing or the use of e-portfolios or social software. Centres wishing to use e-assessment must ensure that the national standard is applied to all learner evidence and that conditions of assessment — as specified in the evidence requirements — are met, regardless of the mode of gathering evidence. The most up-to-date guidance on the use of e-assessment to support SQA's qualifications is available at: www.sqa.org.uk/e-assessment.
